SUMERIAN TEMPLE RECORDS OF THE LATE UR DYNASTY

PART I

BY

HENRY FREDERICK LUTZ

INTRODUCTION

The material of the first part of this paper comes from three sites, viz., Umma, Nippur, and Lagash. Only a few tablets from Lagash are represented, while those from Umma are more numerous than the tablets which have Nippur as their provenance. The tablets of the second part, however, are largely from Umma; with only a small number from Nippur.

The seal inscriptions of the first part have not been included in the text, because in almost every instance the impressions were very indistinct and nowhere complete. It was necessary to reconstruct them from the various impressions running over the obverse and reverse of the tablets. The legends are given here in transliteration.

[1] The reading of this sign is uncertain, but it does not affect the meaning.

[2] Ku-gá=agâru, "rent hire," Delitzsch, S.G., p. 124; á-ku-gá, therefore, literally, "wage-hire."

[3] Nak-kud=nam-kud.

[4] The tablet reads plainly u; the meaning of u appears to be the same as gīr (=nagarruru) in the phrase gīr e-gar-ra.

5	ba-ḫ[ul]	was destroyed;
6	240 sila še á ê-[. . .]	240 qa of barley [as] wages of the . . . . . house,

[12] Šú-bu, literally "to draw (šadâdu) the hand,"; bu has also the meaning baqâmu, "to pull, tear out"; flax was commonly pulled out of the ground instead of being cut, but barley used to be cut with the sickle (see Lutz, Textiles and Costumes, p. 12, illustration no. 7). Perhaps lillan was a kind of barley which was pulled.

[13] Or the "elders."

[14] In some instances where ni-ku occurs, it may stand for îgur, "he rented." Agâru is thus used for animals, as, e.g., alpa ana diâši agâru, "to hire an ox for threshing."

7	mu Ki-maš [^{ki} ba-ḫul]	[during] the year Ki-maš was destroyed,
8	ki Lugal-ka-	from Lugal-ka-

[19	bád Mar-tu mu-ri-iq Ti-id-ni-im mu-dú	built the west wall, [called]: Mu-ri-iq Ti-id-ni-im.

[15] Hardly rice, as Nies proposed, but Hrozny's emmer dough seems to me also very doubtful.

[16] A prepositional affix is lacking; the stated sacrifices must have been for that special field, probably in conjunction with certain fertility rites.

[17] ^{giš}ma-nu = ^{iṣu}êru.

13. Concerning the Delivery of Various Kinds of Sheep and Kids

Tablet 79

1	[. . .] udu nitaḫ sĭg [. . .][18]	[. . .] pure, fat sheep [. . .],

5	2 udu nitaḫ	2 fat sheep,
6	1 udu a-lum[20] nitaḫ	1 fat mountain sheep,
7	Lù-^{d}Nannar sila šú-d[ù][21]	Lù-^{d}Nannar, the cup-bearer,
8	maškim	[being] the procurer,
9	šâg Tum-ma-al^{ki}	in Tu-ma-al^{ki},
10	itu ud 1 ba-zal	up to the first day of the month
11	zi-ga ki Lù-dingir-ra	were expended through Lù-dingir-ra.

14. Itemized Record Concerning Sesame

Tablet 78

1	3+42⅔ sila še-giš-ni gur	3 gur and 42⅔ sila of sesame
2	si-ni-íb Ki-maš^{ki} ba-ḫul	[is] the remainder of the year when Kimaš was destroyed.
3	1 gur Al-ba-ni-ka	1 gur: Al-ba-ni-ka,
4	1 gur Lù-ka-ni	1 gur: Lù-ka-ni,
5	1 gur Ur-nigín-gar	1 gur: Ur-nigín-gar,
6	1 gur Lugal-dingir-mu	1 gur: Lugal-dingir-mu,
7	1 gur Ur-^{d}Nun-gal	1 gur: Ur-^{d}Nun-gal,
8	1 gur A(!)[22]-ba-šag-gi	1 gur: A-ba-šag-gi,
9	1 gur Unu[g]^{ki}-kam	1 gur: Unu[g]^{ki}-kam,
10	1 gur Ur-^{d}Giš-za-mun-na	1 gur: Ur-^{d}Giš-za-mun-na,
11	1 gur Ur-^{d}Im	1 gur: Ur-^{d}Im,
12	. . .30 sila Giš-ú-ga	. . . .30 qa: Giš-ú-ga,
13	. . . . .Nin-ra-ni	. . . . . : Nin-ra-ni,
14	. . . . . Ê-^{d}Šara	. . . . . : temple of ^{d}Šara,
15	. . . . . .gur	. . . . . .gur,[23]

[18] The break at the end of the first line is large enough to have probably contained the word uš. Udu nitaḫ sĭg and udu nitaḫ sĭg uš are not "fat sheep 1st grade and 2d grade"; the sĭg refers to the ceremonial purity of the sacrificial animal, while uš simply means zikârum, "male."

[19] The tablet reads, so far as the sign is preserved, lu=udu in place of the more frequent lù.

[20] udu a-lum a synonym of udu-ḫar-sag, see Hommel, "Zusatzbemerkungen," pp. 200–201, in Nies, Ur Dynasty Tablets.

[21] Thus is probably the gă-šú-dù to be transcribed; šú. . dù, "to hold in the hand"; šú-dù=naš, "carrying."

[22] See below, p. 149, note 38.

16	[. . . . U]r-^{d}Dun-pa-è	. . . . : Ur-^{d}Dun-pa-è,

19	15⅔ gìn azag še-giš-ni-bi 3+40 sila gur	15⅔ shekels of silver: its sesame [being] 3 gur and 40 qa.
20	azag-bi a-dug-da-da-biba-a-	[For] its silver [value] the various deliveries have been
21	gar a-dug a-gá-ra-ta	made. From the deliveries made thereof
22	5 kal itu 13-šù	[by] 5 men during 13 months,

9	mu en ^{d}Innanna	the year when the highpriest of Innanna
10	Unu[g]^{ki} máš-e ni-	of Erech was
11	pád	elected.

[23] In this line apparently the sum-total of the above amounts was given.

[24] gur, literally "turned, turned out."

[25] The tablet has only giš-ni, not še-giš-ni; perhaps read: apin giš-ià, which may have the meaning "oil-press." A translation "the sum-total, turned out from 5 oil-presses, is expended" would seem to be more to the point.

[26] A še equals 1/180 of a shekel.

[27] In the sense of endorsed?

29	á erem ten-na	The wages of the soldiers were paid out.

[32] Aliquot parts of 0, 4 liter; probably 2/60=1/30 of a sila. But why this minute accuracy?

[33] See below, p. 146, note 25.

[34] See below, p. 147, note 30.

[35] 5 represents a fraction of sila; probably 5/60=1/12 sila. The scribe has omitted the word gin.

[36] Dingir sign omitted by scribe.

[37] The totals of prima and ordinary beer are too small to read gur in place of sila throughout the text. On the other hand, these totals are not in agreement with the quantities stated. The scribe apparently noted down only those drink rations which had especially to be checked.

3	Gír-^{d}Suk(k)al	Gìr-^{d}Suk(k)al;

[38] Á-gam is apparently not a special oil, but simply modifies ià-giš; á, "strength, physical strength" (á also contained in the ideograph for sickness ázag), and gam = qiddâti, "bruised, knocked up condition" (scil. of the body).

[39] This refers to all four envoys.

[41] I presume that nun is a mistake for giš; the grain for seed purposes may have been grown by truck gardening.

[49] The abrupt change of subject is due to the break occurring after line 55.

[50] The sign before na is faithfully copied and appears thus on the tablet. I think that instead of uru, erim, or the like, it is intended for te, ten, temen; read probably Ur-temen-na.

[51] Or an abbreviated name ^{d}Ba-ba, the great father god, opp. ^{d}Ma-ma, the great mother goddess.

[52] May either be personal name, like Ur-dub, Ur-més,—or, what is more likely, because of a missing Ur, may express Zugehoerigkeit, "a son of the house of records," i.e., "the recorder."

[53] I have placed lù-kal in the personal name index, but the trace of what appears to be the number 10 seems to indicate that the text continued on line 74 with another subject. The empty line space also would show that this is the case.

7	itu Kur-ú-e	Month Kur-ú-e,
8	mu Si-mu-ru-um^{ki}	the year when Si-mu-ru-um
9	ba-ḫul	was destroyed.

[54] I do not think that in lines 10, 18, 22, 28, and 34 there is an unintentional omission of the numbers by the scribe, but rather that it expresses a medium quality of beer, a kind of beer between prima and ordinary quality.

29. Receipt of Barley and Malt

8	^{ki}ba-ḫul	was destroyed.

[56] It is possible that this individual is the same as the one mentioned in line 4.

[57] Since the number of days agrees with that in line 15, one might think that both workmen fled together.

[58] Or "made public," "announced"; bal="to speak, talk," gù-bal,=šunnu, (II^{1} of šanû, šenû), "to repeat, announce, make known."
